

400 DIGNITARIES MARCH FROM STATE HOUSE TO 'GREAT MEETING'

CALVIN COOLIDGE

HERBERT PARKER

Ex-President Coolidge was all smiles as, with Ex-Atty-Gen. Herbert Parker, chairman of the Tercentenary committee, he prepared to take his place in the line of distinguished officials and guests that marched from the State House to the exercises on the Common.

PROCESSION OF STATE and national officials, foreign representatives and distinguished personages from all over the world as it moved down the State House steps on the way to the "Great Meeting" on the Common, climaxing the Tercentenary ceremony in which the great military parade was reviewed by Governor Allen. The principal address on the Common was made by Rt. Hon. Herbert Laurens Fisher, F. R. S., warden of New College.

your Tercentenary," he said, "and I stand here before you, if not the very kind of Englishman whom the founders of this colony crossed the Atlantic Ocean to avoid, at least one a good deal too tolerant for their taste, while you who listen to me would perhaps be no less distant from the temper and outlook of those stern servants of the Lord."

"Little did the founders reckon that a time would come when the New Canaan would be largely occupied by men of the Irish race, whom they held in deep contempt, or of the Roman faith, which they regarded with abhorrence. Little did they foresee that in the fullness of years their New England would be followed by a New Ireland, a New Italy, a New Germany, a New Poland, and a New Greece, all destined to be merged in a great and harmonious American Commonwealth."

"I've lost my wife."

So said former President Calvin Coolidge to a State House messenger today when he and Mrs. Coolidge became separated at the State House for a few moments.

They had just arrived on the third floor and Mrs. Coolidge turned and entered the executive suite, where Mrs. Frank G. Allen, wife of the governor, was receiving.

Former President Coolidge, instead of following, walked toward the office of the president of the Senate. He went a few paces before he missed Mrs. Coolidge and seemed agitated.

Then the messenger asked if he could aid him and the former President exclaimed: "I've lost my wife."

The messenger explained the whereabouts of Mrs. Coolidge.

to a point where an ambulance awaited. Two members of the party, for this purpose, provided an improvised stretcher by tying their coats together, meanwhile exerting every effort not to cause too great distress to the injured youth, who was bleeding at the mouth and nose.

The ambulance, pushing forward over difficult roads, used 40 minutes in covering the four-mile stretch to the hospital here.

There, awaiting the arrival of the youth was his stepmother, Mrs. Bryce Goldsborough, who arrived at 11 a. m. after receiving word of the flyer's plight. During the night he had remained sleepless at the home here of Harry Jenkins.

RIOTERS KILL 14 IN EGYPT

Alexandria, Egypt, July 15 (AP)—Fourteen persons, of whom eight were Europeans, were killed in serious rioting during a general strike here today.

Approximately 200 persons were reported injured, many of them seriously. One of the dead was an Italian.

Cairo, Egypt, July 15 (AP)—The Exchange Telegraph Co. reported tonight that Mohamed Ali sq. in Alexandria had been occupied by a detachment of Egyptian Army troops and that reinforcements were being rushed from Cairo.

Windows of the European shops fronting on the square were smashed. The crowd tried to set fire to a police station, but was driven off.

One English policeman was wounded.

It was approximately 5 p. m. before Mocker found a house, and searching parties were organized immediately. Darkness overtook the searches, however, and rendered their efforts futile for the night. A physician who accompanied one of the parties returned to his home before the wreckage was found.

About 6:30 a. m. Leonard Lawrence, a stage driver, a member of a searching party, came upon the wreckage and saw a boy, who accompanied him to the foot of the mountain to carry the news. So dense was the region that it required nearly an hour and a half for the boy to make the trip.

Apparently the weight of the wreckage had shifted during the night, for Goldsborough was lying clear of it. His eyes were closed, his teeth had been knocked out and he was cut about the head and chest. One hand firmly grasped the cord ring of his parachute.

Even before the precious trip to the waiting ambulance. Two and a half hours later he was on his way to a hospital.

Sidelights of Parade

About 150 miles of ticker tape, police estimated, lay like a carpet on State st. after the parade passed. They figured on 250 old rolls of tape at 600 yards each. Statistically-minded officials also harnessed a guess that 5000 autos were held up at various points.

When the safety of $2.58 is hanging in the balance, even a Tercentenary parade does not count. An onlooker at the State House steps lost his balance just as he was taking some change from his pocketbook and fell. The change fell to the crowd and instantly a score of persons forgot the parade to retrieve the money and return it to its owner.

Residents of Nahant st. West End, were given an opportunity to glimpse army life in its true form today when the entire 5th Infantry regular army bivouacked on the Boston & Maine railroad property. With guns stacked and pup tents up the soldiers had their midday meal prepared in chow canteens by the cook while the others were parading. Immediately after dinner they broke camp and entrained for Ayer.

Said James M. Curley on the Tribune to Calvin Coolidge: "Mr. President you calm and who may rest."

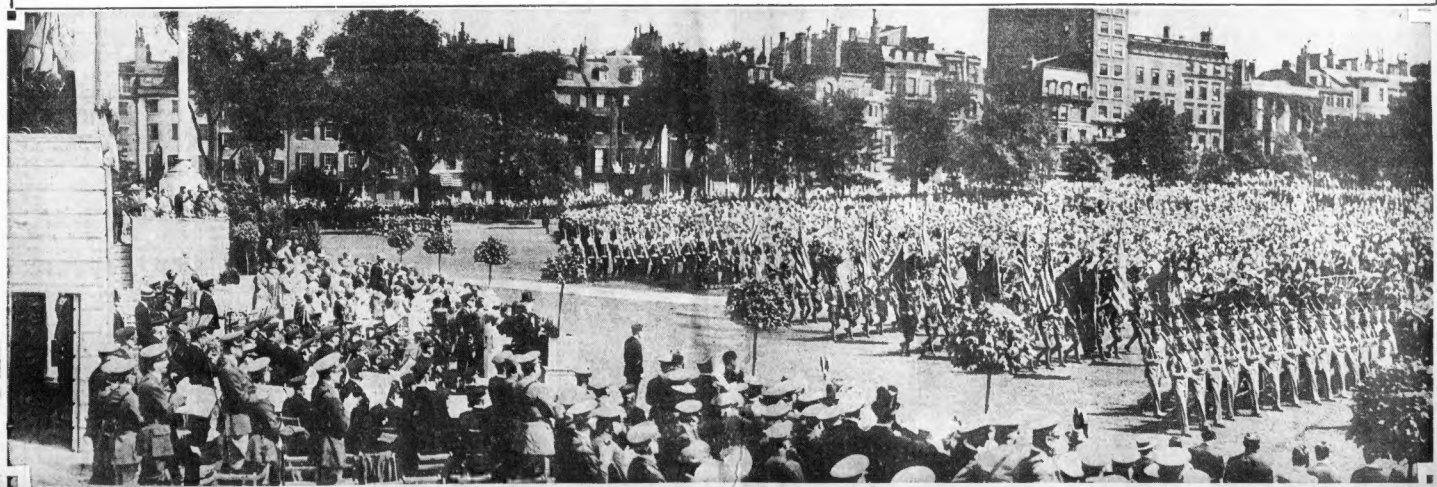

The drum major of the Stetson Band, Weymouth Post, American Legion, parading haughtily past the Tribune, tossed his baton nonchalantly into the air and—dropped it.

The secret of the English victors seemed to delight all those who listened to them.

Hoover Going to Northern Rockies

Washington, July 15 (AP)—President Hoover was said today at the White House to expect to spend at least two weeks in the Northern Rocky mountains late in August or early in September, "voluntarily for purposes of an outdoor holiday and rest."

"PUTS, CALLS" BAIT HOOKS OF SWINDLERS

By EX-SWINDLER

Puts and calls:
Operated on the basis of honesty and established brokerage arrangements. Puts and calls are fair, but a gamble and hazardous.

Operated by a stock racketeer. Puts and calls are but a variation of "Heads I Win, Tails You Lose."

Puts and calls are options to buy stock for a premium of $10.00 for each hundred shares, irrespective of the price of the stock.

Puts and calls may be operative on the "blue chip" stocks that sell for several hundred dollars a share, or on the trading stocks that sell for ten dollars or more.

HOW GAMBLE WORKS

If the buyer of the stock chosen for Put and Call operation believes the stock is going to go up, he buys a call. A broker fixes the margin above the market price that must be passed before the buyer gets a profit. Above that margin the buyer gets the profit.

If the buyer believes the stock he selects is going to drop, he buys a put. If the stock drops below the broker's margin the holder of the put gets the difference.

If the buyer believes the stock is going to "move," but does not know which way, a margin is fixed above and below the market price, and any move above or below goes to the buyer. The arrangement is technically called a straddle.

Put buyer beware

Gives the small capital buyer a chance to control a nice batch of shares for his hundred dollars, doesn't it?

But, here's the skulker in the word pile.

Put and call houses, in the Put and Call field, don't pay off if the buyer loses.

They congratulate him on his excellent judgment—and sell him more Put and Call. No buyer of stock is ever infallible.

The three operators in "The Street" miss. Obviously the amateur, the "nose-tapping" operator, the dabbling, the little fellow trying to get much for little, misse.

But if the buyer of Put and Call can be sent back into the market time after time, he is bound to lose and if he has put back his profit he is out when he quits without just once.

THE GOVERNOR

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT
STATE HOUSE, BOSTON

Each year the public is defrauded of millions of dollars through the methods used by unscrupulous stock salesmen. The BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN is to be highly commended for the efforts to guard the interests of investors, especially those with small savings.

I hope that the timely warning afforded by these disclosures will result in greater security to the citizens of this Commonwealth.

Frank G. Allen

GOVERNOR FRANK G. ALLEN praises the drive of the Boston Evening American against stock swindlers who are taking vast fortunes from unwary investors in New England, as the above letter shows.

one cent a name—by Charles G. Coffman, of 80 John St. It's a good hat. I've used it myself and I know. The people on it will buy, and buy again, as long as they have anything left with which to buy.

Among other names that Ebel's list has on it is the name of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., about whom I have recently been printed. It was through Ebel that Bishop Cannon first began to trade in stocks.

In the stock racket, the business of preparing "stocker lists" is a business in itself. One corporation in Iowa has a tremendous list for it. It puts out a List of Wealthy Women. It furnishes a List of Wealthy Men. It puts out a List of Women Worth More Than $50,000. There are 500 different lists, all in a catalogue.

The company that furnishes the list is not a racketeer organization. But its lists are extensively used by racketeers. A racketeer, Mr. Sawyer today said:

Attorney-General Warner has ordered immediate action. And we hope for sufficient evidence for wholesale arrests within a very short time.

The assistance given by the Boston Evening American through its stock fraud bureau has been invaluable. Many of the witnesses examined only came forward through the encouragement received from the Evening American.

This co-operation has been a great help and has brought to light various fraud and a receiver for the company was appointed.

The company's sales attack opened in New England a year ago, with the appearance of a prospectus and a circular letter signed with the name of Walton. In the letter received by the Boston visitors the following statement appeared:

"I have seen the game as it is played by these business titans. Its secret code has opened the way to untold wealth. To gather a portion of this wealth from oil and gas offered by seepage, a few of my business friends and myself are organizing an oil and gas company. We have acquired a refinery and producing property with a potential value of $10,000,000. There is an opening for a few more investors to join the pre-organization syndicate."

After a follow-up campaign letter was sent out last October, announcing that the "last chance to get in on the ground floor" would be November 10, 1929. However, on November 15, the recipients of the first letter received mail purported to have been sent by the Securities Service Corporation, 288 Wall st., Kingston, N. Y., offering for sale a few pre-organization, membership shares in the Universal company.

GOVERNMENT ACTS

Shortly thereafter, the government stepped in and the indictments followed. That will explain to Boston investors why there has been no market activity in Universal Oil & Gas Co. The officials indicted were T. A. White, president of the company; H. A. Krenner, J. Garfield Crawford, Warren W. Edwards, James E. Dunn, W. M. Collins, John Standish and R. E. Cox, who was once convicted with Dr. Frederick A. Cook in his promotion scheme, and Mrs. N. E. Cox.

Baby Plunges From Veranda in Revere

Stanley Singer, 2½-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Singer of 72 Summer st., Revere, fell three stories from a veranda at his home today, suffering injuries that may prove fatal.

The baby, whose mother is ill, was playing alone on the veranda and is believed to have climbed the railing. He was taken, unconscious, to Massachusetts General Hospital.

BOY IS HELD FOR KILLING NURSE

Green Pond, N. J., July 15 (AP)—Robert Woolley, 3½, son of a Jersey City painter, was in custody today, charged with the slaying of his nurse, Miss Annie Miller, 28, of Scranton, Pa.

Miss Miller's body, with two stab wounds in the abdomen, was found in the back, was found yesterday in a ravine at the foot of Lookout mountain, the disappeared Sunday, when she left the summer home of her employers for a walk with the boy.

Young Woolley was taken in charge when he walked into police headquarters at Dover, N. J., last night and asked for a night's lodging. State police said he confessed to the slaying. The girl had been employed as the boy's attendant for three years.

Waltham Man Fails to Prosecute Brother

On a warrant sworn out by his brother, Peter Valente, 20, of Taylor st., Waltham, was arrested, charged with assault and battery on the brother, Carmelo.

When Peter was arraigned in the Waltham district court yesterday, his brother failed to appear and the case was continued until tomorrow. He was released in $500 bail.

Scotland to Nest Stork for Royalty

London, July 14 (1930)—The royal court circular, issued today, contained the information that the Duke and Duchess of York and their daughter, Princess Elizabeth, have left London for Glamis Castle, Scotland.

Glamis Castle has been selected by the duchess as the birthplace of her second child, whose arrival is expected toward the end of the month.

Thief Takes $30, Leaves $10 Behind

A burglar who entered the gas-line station of A. M. Simmons at Crescent and Prospect sts., Waltham, stole only $30 out of a tin containing $40.

The thief forced a basement window. He located the tin containing the money behind some stairs. The remaining $10 was found in the can when the attendant returned to the station.

Fake Slayer Freed in Mary Baker Case

Washington, July 15—Private Harold L. Brewster, who confessed to the murder of Mary Baker and then repudiated the confession, has been released.

Investigation convinced the police that he had nothing to do with the murder of the pretty Navy Department worker last April.

Election in Haiti Set for October 14

Washington, July 15—The first constitutional elections in Haiti since the Forbes investigation will be held October 14, the State Department announced today.

The election will determine the composition of the Legislature which will in turn elect the President.

Brothers Drown in River at Kittery, Me.

Kittery, Me., July 15—Kenneth Krichbaum, 14, and Andrew, 7, brothers, were drowned in the Piscataqua river yesterday, after the smaller boy fell into the water and Kenneth dove in to try to save him. The younger boy was bailing out a boat and was stepping from it to a wharf when he slipped and plunged into the river.

THE BATTLE CRY OF MODERATION!

Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence, if you would maintain that modern, ever-youthful figure. "Reach for a Lucky instead."

"There is only one remedy for fat, and that is eat the right food . . . There are at least one hundred so-called obesity cures. None of these is permanent. All of these are injurious," says Vance Thompson, Ph.D., in his famous little book, "Eat and Grow Thin," published by E. P. Dutton & Company. We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky instead," you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight, and by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

What can be done with Life Insurance (4) Provision Against Permanent Disability

ACCIDENTS and infirmities daily take their toll and render many persons unable to further prosecute their life insurance. It is very unlikely to happen to us, but we know that it is not absolutely impossible. We think from the thought of becoming a cripple upon those whom we have taught to look up to for support and guidance, and the assurance of safety can be utilized against their failure in such emergency.

Through Life Insurance, arrangements can be made for an accumulated income to such a person, and this income can be used to purchase one's place as a busy and productive individual in the world of affairs.

JOHNSON, REED IN CLASH ON TREATY

Washington, July 13 (AP)—The text of the first American proposal made at the London naval conference was given in the Senate today by Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, one of the delegates, during a hearing conference with Senator Johnson, Republican, California.

Johnson had asked the Democratic senator for a copy of the American proposal. As the senator delegate took it from his hand, the Republican declared that he would put it into the Congressional Record.

"I will put it in the Record myself," countered Reed. Johnson said that was the first time Reed had indicated in the past that he would do so. Reed refused to be offered to explain the treaty before the foreign relations committee of which Johnson is a member.

The California senator denied the Reed charge of the violation of his promise to put it in the Record.

"Furthermore, I have offered time and again, publicly and privately, to show the senator from California these useful, mysterious secret documents," continued Reed.

Reed then the him of secret papers on these documents if Reed Johnson declared, "I don't understand you. I would accept such an offer and I can understand the temperamental make-up of the senator who makes such an offer. That kind of an offer, thank God, isn't in my make-up to accept."

Two Boys Lost at Common Ceremony

Carol Lee and Robert seven years of age, of the New York City, were lost at the common ceremony at the city hall.

Mr. Johnson said that Carol with her left hand lost to left with her right hand and the great thing at the ceremony was that she got off of them as she was the one of the people who were there. There is no afternoon after that ceremony. But in a report to police they were still missing.

Between two tall pine trees of rough-hewn stone—was the gray front of the old parsonage.

The glimmering shadows which lay half asleep between the door of the house and the public highway were a kind of spiritual medium, seen through which the edifice had not quite the aspect of belonging to the material world.

So Hawthorne described the Old Manse where he resided three years. A further description from his Mosses From an Old Manse is as follows:

BUILT IN 1765

Hawthorne was the first lay occupant of the Old Manse. He had loaned George Ripley a sum of money and in partial payment, the old Ripley mansion was granted to the author. Hawthorne married and spent the first three years in this parsonage, with no income except that from his pen. His first child, Una, was born.

The house was erected in 1765 by Rev. William Emerson, who upon his marriage to Phoebe, daughter of Rev. Daniel Bliss, took up his residence within the two-story dwelling. The two stories and two chimneys made it quite an imposing house at that time.

In later years, Mrs. Emerson married Rev. Ezra Ripley.

In 1834, Ralph Waldo Emerson, grandson of William, came to the old homestead and earned the title, the Sage of Concord. His room was Mrs. Lydia Jackson of Plymouth. Two sons, two daughters and Emerson's mother made up the household. The children went to school in their father's barn, with the Alcotts and others. Emerson decried from a long line of divines was very philosophic, and yet was a good playmate to the children, teaching them much of nature, picnicking and berrying in season.

BURNED IN 1873

The Old Manse stands on the road along which the British marched on April 19, 1776, near the entrance to the Old Farm Ground. It has been many times in men and women within it.

Wm. Margaret Fuller, Thoreau, John Brown, the Alcotts and others have been guests within its portals. In 1834 it was partially burned, its owner accepting the shock philosophically, remarking, "But isn't it a magnificent blaze?" Friends contributed $12,000 and pressed the gift upon Emerson, who finally accepted, journeying abroad until the repairs were completed.

Smithy Will Not Return to France

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE
One convoy of wounded after another is the lot of the women ambulance corps of which Helen Smith is a member. Commandant whom Tish has christened "Mrs. Tish," is a hard task-master. The girls receive little sleep and when Smith's mother writes about her ally, she writes "Smithy," picturing the war-weary men. "Mrs. Tish" questions the girls' readiness. Tish's and Smithy's argument, which led to a fight, Smithy is sent home. She was German prisoner and are shocked at their language. Smithy, tired of the horrors of war, goes home and anticipates her relatives by her actions.

CHAPTER 29
Why not? ... I am three weeks since I came home and surely I am not going to moon about any longer—people are thinking it's funny—perfectly absurd the way I refuse to go anywhere; it isn't as though I was a wounded soldier.

I was tired possibly when I came back, but after three weeks—surely a little speech at a recruiting meeting, after all, when a girl's mother is working at top pressure the least her daughter can do is to encourage her and help—why I won't even wear my badge of honor—my uniform. I laugh.

Why am I laughing? Other girls on leave to visit their mothers in uniform and are proud to see their mothers are proud of them—I won't allow my mother to be proud of me; what's the matter with me?

Burnt Uniform And Gave Kit Away

Once I was a sweet girl, happy and interested in local things, now I'm bitter and snappy and sarcastic and with a tongue like an adder, yes, and not above swearing, either, actually swearing, goodness knows where I picked up such language, certainly not at home—a pity I am not Bertie—why, when Roy Evans-Mawington came home with his fractured arm he went everywhere with his mother in uniform to please her—why should I object to saying a few words at a recruiting meeting to show an example to the male and female placers who are hanging back and refusing to obey the call of king and country?

"I won't do it, mother." "Why not?" "Why should I encourage people to do what I have no intention of doing myself?" "You? You're going back soon?"

"No, I've burnt my uniform and given my kit away. I have finished with the war for good."

Disgraceful! Mrs. Smith Raves

There, it is out at last. Mother rises, the committee papers, dropping on the floor, flustered about her feet like large, dismayed butterflies.

"You have what?" she gasps. "Have left the convoy. I am not on leave." She glances at me, resentful, unbelieving. It is a bitter blow to her pride. For a while she glares at me, then gathers up her papers slowly.

"What will Mrs. Evans-Mawington say?" she bursts forth at last, "what will she say to my daughter taking a cushy job in England?"

How well up in war-lane is Mother. I might as well get it over. Not even a cushy job, I tell her, not even a cushy job in England—I have finished. I am not having anything to do with the war in future. I hate war. I disapprove of the whole principle of licensed killing. I am about to tell her I am afraid a rain cloud, when she bursts into a torrent of words.

"Are you mad? What will Aunt Helen say? She has just made you her beloved. She is one of the most ardent re-enters. She will never forgive you, never. And your father, whose to respond to 'Our War' ..."

N. H. RESIDENT GETS WEEK'S BIG PRIZE

Dorchester Woman Awarded $15 for Information on Drowning Rescue

Bostonians have "a nose for news." The flood of news tips, good red hot ones, too, that flowed into the Boston Evening American office last week gave conclusive proof of this.

These tips weren't all rewarded with prizes, for many played second fiddle to police reports on the same occurrence, but some tipsters had news which the police didn't know until a day or two later. That's when the tipster scores most handsomely.

FIRST TIP WINS

Tip came in over the wire in machine man fashion on a cable occurrence in downtown Boston, a two-hour runaway on Tremont st. In this case the rule of first come, first served, had to be applied, but the response to the request for information of this kind was highly gratifying. The Boston Evening American hopes that those tipsters who lost out in this case will wait another time.

Leo McEllan of Manchester, N. H., scored the bulls' eye. He had exclusive information on a stilling racketeer story that made the front page and took a banner line. This was the story of the black-hand letters received by the A. A. C. brothers in the North and "banana kings" and owners of the tipster.

The tip proved to be authentic and McEllan gets the first prize of $25.

RESCUE WINS $15

The second prize of $15 goes to Mrs. Maud Spitzer, 31 Freeport st., Dorchester, who reported the rescue of a boat off the coast beach, Freeport, at last Tuesday. The children in the boat were rescued and it made a good story. This is the kind of story that often does not come in through regular channels either sooner or later.

St. Farrell, 1227 Commonwealth av., Alton, is the third prize-winner. He shared being in a tip on the story of chlorine gas fumes filling an apartment house, causing the occupants to flee and overtake a woman and a policeman. It was a front page lead-the-paper story.

Among the usual stories of 25 each there are a number for exclusive stories out of the everyday run of things—that made excellent reading, the kind of story the reader passes on to his friends. These tips are valuable, and there are many such stories going to waste which may easily be turned into money. Try your hand at it! Know the fascination of seeing your story in print.

Following are the 25 winners for last week: Isaac Careful, 12 Gwynne st., Dorchester. Auto tipped over in Beverly. Front page story. Robert Shaw, 206 Pearl st., South End. Boy knocked down by hit-and-run driver. Number of machine taken. Margaret Moyle, 83 Reservoir st., Cambridge. Two horses ran away on Tremont.

Mrs. Victoria Cantin, 608 Washington st., Chelsea. Horse running through wall of house. J. Sheehan, 48 Federal st., South End. With lottery ticket on Galant Fox. Albert Vega, 81 Maverick st., Continued on Page 23, Column 1

Garrett's Missing 23 Days! $3,913,316 FOR N. E. PHONES

Garrett's Missing 23 Days! Search for Famous Fugitive Is Resumed by Police in Southern Section

While Boston celebrated the tercentenary, the hunt for Oliver B. Garrett, the city's most famous fugitive, swung back to Cape Cod today.

While hundreds of fellow policemen were watching the parade and the exercises on the Common, Special Officers DI Sessa and Condon left headquarters for Cape Cod again.

Last week they secured the same territory, carrying with them photographs of men sought by the police some years ago in connection with the blowing up of a rum ship.

As the hunt for Garrett went on, members of the department realized that he witnessed the last big parade in Boston from a reserved seat.

It was the police parade last Columbus Day, shortly after Garrett's retirement from the department had gone through. The ex-cop, reader, with other retired officers, watched his former fellow-cops maneuver on the Common with much interest, with no intimation he would be a fugitive today.

It was pointed out that the shortage of funds reported by Clerk John R. Campbell of the Suffolk Superior Court, under the district attorney is permitted to spend money in a search, and then return him to the county treasurer.

Repairs to Close Washington St.

Traffic Commissioner Joseph A. Conroy announced today that beginning at 7 a. m. tomorrow Washington st., between Stuart and Heydon sts., will be closed for an estimated period of four days for resurfacing.

Tremont st., which has been closed between Stuart and Heydon sts., will be reopened at the same time.

Gets Five Years for Attempted Murder

A state prison sentence of from five to five years was imposed by Judge Wilfred Gray in Suffolk Superior court today on Joseph McCormack, of Worcester, indicted guilty of assaulting his landlady with a hammer with intent to kill.

The assault occurred on April 16 and the victim, Mrs. Mary A. Haley was an inmate of City Hospital for 31 weeks.

$100 Weekly for News Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston American offers the opportunity. Every week $100 in prizes will be given for news tips telephoned in to the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

And what is a news tip? It is the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip.

There will be $25 given weekly for the best, first exclusive news tip received, $15 for the next best, $10 for the next best and $2 prizes for each of the 25 next most valuable tips. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

JEFFERSON SOCIETY 'THREAT'

Declares He Would Not Have Attended Show Dinner Even if Asked to Do So

By HERMAN J. DOBRYTZ

"Perhaps they were a little thrifty and wanted to save postage; I should not have gone anyway."

That was Mayor James M. Curley's reply today to the failure of the Jefferson Society to invite him to its dinner last night, attended by every other prominent Democratic leader in the State.

"I received no invitation but I'm not alarmed about that," he said. "I should not have gone anyway. To be charitable I'll say that perhaps the Jefferson Society figured they were wasting postage, and perhaps they are a little thrifty, their thrift apparently appreciating the point of parsimony."

According to an official of the society, who had invited the mayor, he was invited, though in charge of the dinner were told that an invitation to Mayor Curley would be "received" by members of the society, that it would not be a good thing for the society to do.

Following the mayor's statement Laura Brown, president of the Jefferson Society, said: "The dinner was originally planned to be limited to its members and a few others who had expressed a friendly interest in this organization. It was not intended to be a general dinner like that given for Gov. Roosevelt to which Mayor Curley was invited."

"After Mr. Shouse's acceptance many members asked that the society's invitation be sent to various persons and these requests were complied with."

"The secretary was instructed to inform all who inquired that we should be glad to have them come. Absolutely no one was refused."

"The officers of the society do not have further attention to the matter of attendance. The directors took no action whatever to refuse anyone."

"No slight or offense to Mayor Curley was intended by any of them. Had his Honor expressed, directly or indirectly, as did so many others, the slightest interest in the occasion, he would have been made most cordially welcome."

A scathing attack on President Hoover by Joseph Shouse, chairman of the Democratic National Executive Committee and an ultimatum delivered by independents that unless the Democrats offered a balanced state ticket this fall they would lose thousands of independent votes that went Democratic for Alfred E. Smith in Massachusetts, the subject of a dinner, held at Hotel Statler.

Chairman Frank J. Donahue of the Democratic State Committee started the ball rolling by stating that he could see nothing but a Democratic ticket in a conference of party leaders and members to discuss a balanced ticket.

AVAILABLE CANDIDATES As available, he then named Congressman William J. Fields of Springfield, Gen. Charles H. Cole, Mayor Michael J. O'Brien of Everett, Joseph B. Ely of Westfield, Judge Frederick H. Chase of Concord, Mayor Charles E. Conner of New Bedford, Atty. William G. Thompson of Boston.

To the list proposed by Donahue, Atty. Thompson added the names of former Mayor Andrew P. Felt and Chairman Donahue himself.

Mayor Felt was present, but was not among the speakers. It was true also of former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, Thomas C. O'Brien, Marcus A. Coolidge and Roland D. Sawyer.

Chairman Shouse charged that the people of the state have lost faith in President Hoover. "When Hoover signed the Smoot-Hawley tariff last month he was merely completing the party to which he was a party from the beginning," he declared.

He charged that within seven months after the great economic disaster of 1929, the nation's kitchens and bread lines were in precisely every large city in the country.

SEARCH SEA FOR BODIES OF FIVE

For the bodies of the five men drowned off Nahant with the capsizing of the sloop, Nomad, five small guard boats and a score of volunteer pleasure craft commenced an unsuccessful sea hunt today. Three 15-foot patrol boats, one 12-foot and the last from the Point Allerton station in command of Capt. George Joseph led the search. Along the Nahant shore from the cliffs to Duxbury there was a double patrol of surfmen from the North Nahant station in command of Capt. William Costello.

Edwin Garreau, young Boston banker and the one survivor of the upset, was recovering from his experience at his home in Nahant. The body of Elizabeth Jeanette Stunell, 16, who went to cheer the spirits of the men clinging all night to the overturned craft, was at her home in Commonwealth ave., Woburn.

The other victims were Charles C. Hall, 24, of Nahant; Willie Park, 27, of Boston; and Kenneth W. M. Walker, 16, of Nahant. O. J. Johnson, 14, of Nahant, was also missing.

CO-EDS TRAVEL HALF WAY ACROSS CONTINENT TO WIN WAGER

SPEND LAST NIGHT IN R. I. JAIL

University of Missouri Girls End Jaunt From Middle West in Driving Rain

OF all the visitors who came to "The Great Meeting" today none were more thrilled than those co-eds from the University of Missouri, who drove here from Columbia, Mo., in an ancient car. The girls, two Athens of Kansas City, Josephine Logan of Chicago, and Dorothy Stern of New York, arrived wet and bedraggled in the terrible rainstorm yesterday, after having slept in the jail in East Greenwich, R. I., the night before to save hotel bills.

The girls made a wager before graduation, June 4, that they could make the round trip to "The Great Meeting" in Boston on $100, including the cost of buying a car for the trip. The car cost $45.

They arrived nearly "soaked" but jubilant that they were in time for the big celebration.

FOLKS GOOD TO THEM

"We had no idea the public is so kind," Miss Atkins said upon their arrival in Boston. "Why, folks let us sleep in their back seats and helped us change tires on the road and even invited us to dine along the way."

The girls had their most serious setback when they asked to sleep in the jail which they heard was as "comfortable as a home."

They were refused admission because there was no charge against them, but when they started to weep the sheriff's heart melted and the matron took them in for the night.

Leaving Columbia in June, Miss Atkins drove alone to Chicago, where she picked up Miss Logan and Miss Stern.

STOPPED AT NIAGARA

They stopped at Niagara Falls, where they slept in Victoria Park. The senior class had given them the car "on wheels" so they had plenty of beans and tomato soup.

At North Manchester, Ind., they found the thrill of driving the same French car that Marion Davies had used in a motion picture and had it cut afterward.

The girls expect to drive back after seeing New England.

2 NOTED HUSBANDS PRIESTS DIE SAME DAY

Funeral of Fr. Farrell Set for Thursday; Time of Rites for Fr. McDonough Undecided

Funeral services for Rev. John J. Farrell, who was for 12 years pastor of St. Paul's, Dorchester, and who died shortly before midnight last night after a month's illness, will take place at that church Thursday at 10 o'clock.

Father Farrell was one of two widely-known Boston priests who passed away yesterday, the other being Rev. William H. McDonough, pastor of St. Mary Star of the Sea Church, East Boston, a post he had held for a quarter century.

Father McDonough died of acute stomach trouble. Plans for his funeral will be announced later.

Celebrant of the solemn high mass at St. Paul's for Father Farrell will be Rt. Rev. Monsignor Joseph R. McInchey of Lynn, and he will be assisted by Rev. Augustine P. Hickey and Rev. Frederick J. Alchin of Everett.

The office of the dead will be chanted by priests of several parishes tomorrow at 4 p. m. On Thursday morning at 7, children of Father Farrell's flock will attend a special children's mass.

Two sisters, Mrs. John P. Dooley and Miss Anna E. Farrell, both of Dorchester, were born in East Boston, Sept. 28, 1861, and were graduated from Holy Cross College and St. John's Seminary, and was ordained at Sacred Heart Church, East Boston, Church of the Blessed Sacrament, Jamaica Plain, St. Paul's, Cambridge, and St. John's, Canton.

While at college he was elected to the directorship of St. Paul's Catholic Club of Harvard.

Father McDonough was born at Salem in 1858. He was a graduate of Claremont University and St. John's Seminary. He went to his last Boston parish from Cohasset where he was also pastor.

And now comes another Alinworth, this time Henry Alinworth of Halifax, N. S., to claim valuable property in the Merrymont and Wollaston sections of Quincy.

Like Bruce Alinworth, who made such a sudden appearance and disappearance at Quince two weeks ago, this latest claimant cites that he is the direct descendant of Thomas Morton, America's original whoopee man. Like Bruce, Thomas is equally emphatic in his defense of the song and dance activities of his ancestor.

Mayor Thomas J. McGrath received the latest claim by mail today. He smiled and made no comment.

Loves Old Car so Much He Will Give New One for It

Here's a man who is willing to give a new car for an old one. Clarence Allen of 1141 Hyde Park ave., Hyde Park, wants his old car back. The machine was stolen last night at Onset.

Lots for the old touring car, which has carried him more than 10,000 miles, has prompted Allen to offer these terms to the person who restores his prized possession.

Not once has he had any trouble whatsoever with the machine, which was the first of its make to be used in Hyde Park.

"If the present, or persons, who stole my car, will return it, I will buy them a new one, and they needn't have any fear of police prosecution," Allen declared.

Councilor Wilson and Bride in City Hall 'at Home'

City Councilor Robert Gardner Wilson, Jr., and his bride of four days, the former Miss Florence R. Purcell, returned to their desks in City Hall today.

The couple were kept busy receiving congratulations of scores of friends. In the institutions department, where Mrs. Wilson is employed, fellow-employees staged an impromptu reception.

Both Councilor Wilson and bride declined to comment on their marriage made from saying it took place in New York on Saturday and that Mrs. Wilson will resign her position in City Hall after she has completed certain work in which she was engaged prior to her marriage.

The couple will reside in Dorchester, the district the bridegroom represents in the City Council. Mrs. Wilson is the daughter of Police Sgt. and Mrs. Patrick Purcell of 8 Gladys ave., Jamaica Plain.

AUTO ON TRACK; TWO ARRESTED AS DRUNKS

Car Runs Out of Gas and Men Abandon It at a Railroad Station

Their car ran out of gasoline on the Boston & Maine tracks near the Wellington depot early today. They set off with a gallon can and eventually found a filling station and started staggering back with the fuel.

Then they forgot where the car was parked.

Sergeant William G. Kinty and a patrolman of the Wellington depot picked them up and they began a tour of Medford and Somerville trying to find the car. They couldn't.

Police finally looked them for drunkenness—Charles Fossate of North St. and Victor Le Guer of High st., both Medford.

Then they ran off on another hunt and stood after dark, when the car was parked right on the tracks in the Wellington depot.

An engine was sent to look for the car, but it was not found. The car was delayed several minutes. But it might have been worse.

Alphonse Makes Raquel Change Her Dress for the Evening Party

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Raquel Roloff, chief model for Alphonse Couhet, noted fashion agent, is in Paris on her way from France to France, for beauty attractions. She is the daughter of a Frenchman, and her beauty attracts the attention of Berthe Adams, a millionaire sportsman. Alphonse resents Adams's interest in her. Upon her arrival in the French capital, she learns to her dismay that she and Greta Tzoules, a famous actress, are to appear together in a play. Greta Tzoules, who has a room on the same side in different hotel—Greta at the Ritz and Raquel at the best fashionable Continental. Greta declares that the agreement is owing to Alphonse's jealousy—that he wishes to hide Raquel away. Alphonse is so sure of Raquel that for her first night in Paris he has arranged for her to dine at a restaurant in the Bois de Boulogne she must wear a colorful gown.

CHAPTER 41

When Alphonse called

Raquel promptly at 8 o'clock that evening, as he had promised, Greta was with him.

"We are coming up," he would say when they were announced.

Alphonse's greeting was graceful, gallant. Apparently all trace of the afternoon conflagration was wiped out. Not even a trace of the "little incident."

"I wish to inspect the models you have chosen," he explained.

Alphonse, without ceasing to examine both Greta and Raquel with critical eyes, as if they were pieces of merchandise, pointed out the most beautiful merchandise.

"No. Not unless he suggests it," he said.

"I'd like to treat him at his own game. He made you just on purpose because he knows he will be inconspicuous. He was waiting right to challenge you."

"Was Greta rich?" the countess asked.

"No, but she had perfect color most becoming. Was the color to change it inspired by the color of the dress?"

"That is better," Alphonse said.

"I wish to inspect the models you have chosen," he explained.

Alphonse, without ceasing to examine both Greta and Raquel with critical eyes, as if they were pieces of merchandise, pointed out the most beautiful merchandise.

Alphonse decided on the Chateau Madrid, after all.

color.

He quickly closed the door of the room and began to divest himself of the dress which was the color of his chartruse.

"Fast!" It was Greta, motioning him to hurry.

He got dressed in the dressing room farthest from the door.

"Get a surprise! That's gonna come out of you!" said the maid in an undertone, croaking the words of the chorus to the waiting Alphonse. "Hertie Adams rang me up at the Ritz. She says she's coming to see you. I told him we would be here in half an hour."

"He's going to show up later," said Greta.

"Alphonse will insult him out-right," she whispered.

She looked at her wrist. The Raquel stuck her head into the door and said that the pulled it down carefully into place.

"It's stunning," Greta said, pointing her yellow head at a new dress.

"But it certainly is not what you might call festive, kind, and complimentary. Let's do it up with a dash of red."

Or how about the coral ecar-

You'll have to stop dinging my hair!" she said.

"You draw up as honest as you can," said Greta.

"Put it in writing," countered Greta.

"I'll do it," said Alphonse, "but for-trot. If you'll promise not to tell me anything another time, I'll turn, sniffing out her skirts, urging him toward the dance floor."

He had given the barret necklace to Greta.

"Shall we dance, Mademoiselle?"

"Oh, yes," she said fervently.

"I'd love it."

"You're a rather dance with Alphonse than any partner she has ever had."

She danced with Alphonse with him. She became a part of the alluring music of the rhythm of the music.

Alphonse did not annoy her with his words.

Like her, he found in dancing a happy way to escape the happiness in a baroque of dances.

That young man, Adams, in the letter to Greta, had been telling her when they were returned to the hotel, that he was not proving. Hertie's plotting to ruin to Greta, his cut damask and the other things, and the magic with the humor of the

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:
The killing of children by autos on streets of Greater Boston is a matter that should arouse more interest. We are apt to take these accidents without suggesting any remedy, only asking parents to caution their children about crossing or playing in public streets.

We want more summer playgrounds. Children must play to be happy. They will naturally play in the streets, if they have no other place to stretch themselves in.

Police men of New York city guard the children of 431 school playgrounds. In 1929, 340 children were killed by autos in New York city, and of this number 21 per cent were killed during the vacation months.

While the average for Boston is smaller than this, yet it is nothing to be proud of. We have got to have more summer playgrounds, and we must have them protected by policemen.

Encourage more playgrounds! Save the lives of children during summer months!
G. R. HILTON.

Today We Give Thanks for Our Heritage of Free Government

The State of Massachusetts today celebrates with pride and with joy the 300th anniversary of the settlement of Massachusetts Bay.

We parade with pomp and circumstance. We feast and we banquet. And we pause to give thanks for the wonderful heritage of free government which was created on this soil, which endowed us with the most elaborate measure of liberty ever enjoyed by any people and which has served as a beacon of hope to the oppressed throughout the world.

Coming to this virgin wilderness to escape persecution, the Puritans established within four years of their arrival the representative system of government. In ten years they had created the bicameral system which is the mode of our Nation and of every State within it. They conceived and adopted the Body of Liberties in which they designed to guarantee the individual rights of the citizen in his relationships with his fellowman and in his obligations to his government.

They devised here in Massachusetts the first system of public education. In five years from the fateful day when they first touched this shore they had set up a public school. Shortly they inaugurated Harvard College, the first institution in North America devoted to higher education. They ordained by law that every township must maintain free schools and they made education compulsory.

Here the America of today was born.

They were inspired by the desire to perpetuate freedom. They built a sanctuary of liberty, in which the humble would share rights equal with the most affluent, and they promoted education in order that every citizen would be fittingly equipped to appreciate and to preserve his heritage.

The gifts which are ours today, which we accept so naturally as to give scant recognition to their value, were won for us by them only through courage, fortitude, suffering, misery and hardship.

They came not in the comfort and ease of an ocean liner. "For nine, long, dreary weeks they were tossed by waves and buffeted by winds."

They fashioned homes of rough wood from the forests, "and the roofs thatched with dried marsh grass or with bulrushes."

For the first five years they were never free from famine in the winter months.

"Before the end of October, 1631, food was so scarce in Boston that the poorer people had nothing save acorns, clams and mussels to eat."

"Roger Clap swapped his puppy dog with an Indian for a peck of corn."

"Meal boiled in salt and water became the diet even of the most well-to-do families."

"Governor Winthrop was down to the last batch of bread in his oven."

"On the first day of January, every man, woman and child in the Bay Colony spent his or her time in praying to the Lord to save them from starvation."

Only the arrival in February of the early mercy ship with a cargo of wheat, peas, oatmeal, pickled beef and pork, generously donated by the people of Ireland, saved them from death and enabled them to carry on to the goal of freedom which they preserved to us.

So, as we feast and celebrate with prideful joy let us be not unmindful of the heroism and sacrifices which carried them through. The ideal of a free and independent government came to us with the lustre of their suffering.

We can prove ourselves worthy or unworthy of it.

If our celebrations of today mean anything at all they should include a firm resolution by us not to endanger this freedom by in any measure entrusting the fate of the United States to the foreign influences which the Puritans came to this shore to escape.

Money for Schools

Boston Stands High in Nation

The New York American points with justifiable pride to the fact that New York City spent $285,195,000 for educational purposes in the past decade.

Our interest was pricked. We inquired of the Boston School Committee and Mr. Edward Sullivan informs us that in the same period the city of Boston spent $153,691,956.29.

In proportion to our population it would seem that the city of Boston holds the enviable record. But, both records are commendable, for, as the American said:

"Schools are the foundation stones of the republic. Vigorously in expanding educational facilities is false economy."

"In a democracy the success of government, the progress, the prosperity, the perpetuation of the Nation depend upon the education of the people and the ability of the people to govern."

Symphony's Triumph

Fiedler and Men Deserve Acclaim

Arthur Fiedler and his Symphony Orchestra were worthy of the magnificent reception given them by the 10,000 or more men, women and children who assembled on the Charles River Esplanade for the first of the season's free concerts.

We do not comment upon the artistic merit. Classical music which has survived the generations and when played by one of the finest orchestras in the world scarcely requires laudatory adjectives.

But in behalf of the people of Boston we do compliment Mr. Fiedler and his musicians for their fine social spirit. They are providing clear, refreshing, educational entertainment to those who could least afford to employ it and who, therefore, prize it most.

Credit for the Elks

Plan Big Fund for Welfare Work

The national order of Elks has in mind a $50,000,000 fund to promote and expand its welfare activities. The generosity with which the members of this order have contributed to public welfare enterprises, while ministering without ostentation to the needs of their own, is now so much taken for granted that the public scarcely pauses to give them the applause which is their due. Any temporary embarrassment which Boston Lodge suffers will be soon forgotten in the light of its long and estimable career.

Platforms Wanted

Some Candidates Tell Where They Stand

Gradually, some of the many candidates for the Senate and governorship nominations are dropping "practical politics" long enough to announce their platforms. The candor of some of them is to their credit. All the gentlemen who will strive for elective offices this Fall must get it into their heads that the people of Massachusetts are not in the habit of voting for candidates who feel too superior to state their attitudes on the important domestic and foreign policies.

THE OLD SHELL GAME

THIS PICTURE is an editorial in itself. It shows at a glance the real situation in Europe. It gives American citizens a very clear view of what Uncle Sam would be up against were he to become embroiled overseas.

The "Sucker" in the hoary old game of Calling the Turn on the Elusive Pea has just as much chance of getting an even break as would Uncle Sam in the SHELL GAME of European Diplomacy.

O. O. McIntyre Abroad

PARIS, July 15.—The Cafe du Dome, on the convenient corner where Boulevard Raspail crosses Montparnasse, remains the stage for that curious assortment of oddly dressed freaks spawned out of the Latin quarter attic. The unwashed, self-shooting and halting dreamers and cadgers are all there.

The enterprising John Ringling never provided a free side show comparable to this one. The man in the dapper suit, the effeminate, pale, lavender-shirted Argentine fop, the cooing and the brooding runner, mill about in a by man crazy-quilt of eccentricity and perversion.

Just as Greenwich Village has passed as an artistic sanctuary, so is the Latin quarter being engulfed by holism. The struggling artist with real ambitions has almost vanished and held the field to the petty racketeers who grow whiskers and long hair, sprout flowing ties and trim the tourists.

The latest group of gypsters on Montparnasse are the "collees." They walk up and down, always hatted, with their portfolios and a tabe next to their victims. Then they begin to inspect, then stroke at arm's length. A confederate strolls up and admires them tremendously. They exchange a few technical art terms.

The work is passed to the victims for inspection. The aura of poverty incites a sale for usually 60 francs. The victims will never know that the sketches are printed from a steel engraving plate and are purchasable along the quay for five francs. The artist never made an etching in his unromantic life. Ladies suffering from the 10-Y complex, the Latin quarter euphemism for Deported Youth, are invariably glib in such transactions. For the first time in my life and while sitting along the Dome sidewalk today, I was singled out as a hophound. One of those itinerant Turk sellers of Oriental rage sidled up to the table.

While holding out one of his rugs he eyed me covertly, looked about furtively and whispered inquiringly: "A little shot, M'sieur? I should have busted him in the old hawk eye, but like a simperton I mumbled an embarrassed 'No today.' I didn't begin to get really mad until I was half way home—the black baboon!"

Among the ever present pavement hawkers in front of the Dome was a fellow with a wire cigarette holder rolled around his ear. The end of the cigarette had a hinge-like arrangement that permitted him to flip the cigarette in and out of his mouth as he walked along. It won my instant vote as the most useless invention ever devised. And if the demonstrator survives nicotine poisoning he's a physiological wonder.

The most beautiful of the drink percentage girls about the Montparnasse section—as around the chaise longue—are the Vietnamese. They are tall and slender, conscious, and have a sinking walk and a pantherine manner. I watched one employ her comely wiles to ensnare a German—I would say if questioned was from the neighborhood of Hillsboro, O.—today. In 15 minutes he was at her table showing her, among other things, the picture of the kiddies in the back of his watch, his gold-mounted Elk's tooth and his letter of credit.

At 4:30 in the afternoon a black-shirted, leather-legged and large-boned gentleman comes peddling madly up to the Dome curb on his bicycle with a knapsack filled with tiny daily doings of the stupor—four-page sheet called "Le Montparnasse." It sells for 10 centimes and its scandalous and salacious contents would give Mr. John Sumner a terrific wrench. Everybody buys to see what they did last night.

At a front row table, too, was a porcine gentleman with the unmistakable red cheeks and blond hair of the Fatherland, placidly slipping a stone mug of beer from a mottled maid. Between sips he read his copy of the Parisier Zeitung—Paris newspaper printed in German. Time flies!

It was a well grounded knowledge of this fact that inspired the Founders of the Republic to adopt the policy of "NO ENTANGLING FOREIGN ALLIANCES."

Some of our present day "Statesmen," with ears always attentive to the pleas of internationalists, would do well to study the writings of great Americans of the past, BEFORE they force Uncle Sam to stick his nose into the political messes of the Old World.

This Inferiority Racket

ALTHOUGH I'M a parent myself, I hold no special brief for man and his. I'll freely admit, as a class, we know less about our jobs than any other class of workers. And the damage we do by our ignorance and conceit is plenty.

But still I rise to protest against this modern fad of hanging every thing on the old folk.

It is true that papa and mama can put an awful cramp in little Willie's style—but that's no reason why every conceivable form of human cowardness and cowardice should be blamed on some snub or awe received while in the cradle. While, in present, our most peculiar form of alibi.

Why is Willard a flop and Henrietta a nag and Gladys a whiner and Carter a bore and Fred a sore head and Horace a groucher? If you'll listen to them (and I'll like to see you get out of it!) it's all because mother favored Sister Susie or dad made 'em chop wood while the other kids played baseball. So naturally they got an Inferiority Complex. And they've never been able to face life's cruel buffets.

Now, of course, there's nothing unusual in this desire to pass the buck for our human frailty. Adam started the practice when he blamed that apple on Eve, and it has been going strong ever since. And our elders had doubtless the same desire to hang their lapses on their progenitors, which is now exhibited by the younger generation. But they didn't get very far with it, for their whines lacked, as it were, professional backing.

The psychiatrist had not as yet arrived to put his scientific Okay on their moans and mutterings. So, regardless of what the Old Folks had done to them, they were supposed to snap out of it and act regular. Which they generally did.

But those simple days have gone forever. Now the woods are simply crammed with learned genes who, for a slight consideration, are willing to listen to any amount of belittling and give you their psychiatric assurance that it's all because Ma made you wear blue ribbons when you preferred pink.

Mind you, I'm not saying that they're not partly right. Nor do I believe real psychiatrists and their stuff. Personality I think that the conscientious members of the clan are the best thing that has happened to the human race.

But what I'm feeling about is the use which a lot of lugubrious loafers made of these psychiatric delusions. For, having discovered what ails 'em, do they then try to make a fresh start? No, indeed! They proceed to treat themselves like rare Museum Specimens. And like rare Museum Specimens, it becomes one long discourse on Exhibit A and how he, or she, got that way.

But you can attract plenty of attention and duck large bags of labor and responsibility if you're different. So they specialize on Being Different—until this Inferiority Complex stunt has become a regular racket. And it's doubtful which is the worst pest—the guy with the gat or the bozo with the blast.

THE SHADES vary widely in the same family; there are never any whole large families simply inter-mediate between the parents. How is this to be explained?

Let us suppose that instead of one gene-pair, as in the Four-color gene, there is an original black and white pair, and that in three or four generations, assorting skidder gene-pairs.

In the second generation of a negro and a white parent, by the usual Mendelian reasoning it can be shown a priori that there will be all sorts of mixtures and combinations; and that is exactly what is found.

There will be a few with white genes only—a very small minority. And an approximately equal minority with black genes only. The majority will have black and white mixed in various proportions, the likelihood of any tint turning up being the greater, the nearer it is to halfway mixture color.

And this is what an extensive statistical examination of colored population shows to be the case. We need not go into all the exact technical details of this research.

We will only note that, that Mendelian principles can still be detected at work here, and that the black and white genes do not mix together but retain their independence in the mixed stock. We are dealing with shuffling genes, not with "mixed blood."

It is perfectly possible that a pure white, or a pure negro, could spring from one of the early generations of such a cross. It is of course extremely unlikely. In the matter of skin color alone about one in sixty-four (or if four instead of three separate genes are at work, about one in two hundred and fifty-six) of the second crossbred generation will be pure white and one pure black.

Moreover, there are another genes at work controlling the shape of the features, the voice, the characters of the hair and so on.

Capital Silhouettes

By GEORGE R. BROWN

SENATOR CAPPER'S praise of the Grundy graft tariff indicates that he has been too busy issuing campaign statements lately to read the farm news in Capper's Topeka capital.

PITTSBURGH is celebrating the defeat of Gen. Braddock and at this rate it won't be a week before the Senate shows up in sackcloth and ashes bemoaning the licking that John Paul Jones once administered to the Serpents.
